Reflection

While today's readings were written long, long ago, they still offer us insights into living the life God wants for us in the present. In the Old Testament reading from Isaiah we are shown that God is always present to guide us in dealing with difficulties. It's a comforting thought. God reminds the Israelites of how he led them out of suffering and that he is doing something new to help them in their current circumstances. God tells them he helped them before; and he will help them again. God is telling that to us too. He has been with us in the past...he is with us now...and he will be there for us in the future. Do we perceive it? Take ten minutes today to be still and be with God. Read the scripture for the day for your faith tradition and reflect on what it means to you in your life. God wants to help you – you just need to listen.
